Job Title: Digital Project Manager

Department: Digital

Location: Bournemouth

Salary: £DOE

Who we are

Quantum is an award winning independent brand experience agency of 30 awesome staff. Put simply, we love what we do, and for the last 15 years we've been creating the best, truly motivating experiences for our clients. Experiences that sell products.

We work with some of the biggest global FMCG clients, and take an insight-driven approach to creating campaigns that really sing to their customers. With a deep understanding of our industries, a strategic view of the full shopper journey, and incredibly talented creative and digital teams, we craft experiences that captivate audiences with seamless interactions and personal connections across digital, retail and all of the touchpoints in between.

About the role

As a Project Manager in our digital team, you will be managing client website and application projects from start to finish, including scoping and development, wireframing, design, build and delivery. You'll be delivering projects to tight timelines, and ensuring that internal and external resources are managed to ensure that projects run smoothly.

Your day-to-day will be working closely with our design, development and client services teams, as well as directly communicating with clients to ensure that expectations are met. So working in a similar role in an agency environment is key.

You will also assist with project costing and reporting so an eye for detail is absolutely key. Plus, you will have a passion for digital and will pay a keen interest in the latest market trends; because we want your suggestions, creativity and ideas for helping us to grow existing and new accounts, and become a valuable member of the digital team.

Main Responsibilities and key skills required:

- Able to 'own' projects and day-to-day planning and project management
- Ability to thrive in an independent working environment and be a proactive team player
- Demonstrable experience of managing web and digital projects from start to finish.
